Human smugglers caught?

Last fall, authorities boarded a ship with 76 Tamils aboard Then, as now, officials worried migrants may be part of Tamil Tigers, a banned terrorist organization

The Canadian navy boarded a cargo ship off British Columbia on Thursday carrying hundreds of migrants believed to be Tamils from Sri Lanka.

Some of the migrants may include dozens of children, says Lorne Waldman, a lawyer who represented many of the Sri Lankan migrants that arrived in a similar way last October.

Public Safety Minister Vic Toews immediately labelled some of the 490 passengers on the ship "human smugglers and terrorists," although he didn't elaborate. He used the ship's arrival to promise swift action from Ottawa.

"The Canadian government is taking action," Toews said in the statement.

"Human smugglers and human traffickers are now watching Canada's response to judge whether or not they can continue to take advantage of us."

Toews said the government will be sending a message "loud and clear" that human smugglers will be prosecuted, though he provided no details.

The jobless, dog days of summer

Report shows 20% of Canadian university students were unable to find work this summer ◐ Undergraduate tuition this fall averages around $6,200 in Ontario

The whole reason Alicia Ali took two courses this summer was to have a lighter load in her final year — and she took them at night, so she could make money by day.

But four months and some 20 resumes later, the McMaster University student hasn't made "a single penny" and will have to get a part-time job this fall, "which defeats the purpose of taking those courses.

"Honestly, I tried everything to get work, from mall job to waitress to receptionist. Maybe it's the economy, but as a student you feel like you're the bottom rung of the ladder," said the Whitby political science major.

As the end of summer looms, Ali belongs to the 20 per cent of Canadian university students who were unable to find work this summer, according to a new report by a Toronto-based think tank on higher learning.

The survey of some 5,000 students shows 19.8 per cent could not find work this summer, almost twice the student summer jobless rate cited by Statistics Canada, which doesn't count those who take summer courses.

$2,700
Amount student loan plans like OSAP expect recipients to earn every summer.

But many students take courses because they can't find work or while they look for work — like Ali — so the two shouldn't rule each other out, noted co-author Miriam Kramer of Higher Education Strategy Associates.

"We need to raise public consciousness of the difficulty some students experience getting work."

University of Waterloo graduate Chanel Chien could not find work all summer, despite passing out more than 50 resumes for postings where "Omigod, hundreds of people showed up. It was ridiculous," said the 23-year-old sociology major from Mississauga who focused on retail and office assistant jobs.

She will live at home this fall and commute to a community college program in marketing in Toronto, which she hopes will "help me get work. It's impossible to find a decent job.

"After trying from April to June, I gave up."

▶ Mayoral candidate Rob Ford, who has surged ahead of his rivals in the mayoral race, according to a new poll, was chastised Thursday for his allegations that city hall is corrupt.

Surging Ford gets scolding from city hall

Ford has 65.7% support from federal Tory voters, 36.8% from Liberals, 20% from New Democrats: Poll

Rob Ford now holds a commanding lead in the mayoral race, taking 37.6 per cent of the decided vote in a recent poll released Thursday.

Numbers from Pollstra Research show George Smitherman's campaign seems to have stalled; once neck-and-neck with Ford, he came second with 28.7 per cent, while Joe Pantalone was third with 15.5 per cent. Rounding out the poll was Sarah Thomson (10.3 per cent) and Rocco Rossi (7.9 per cent).

But the good news for Ford may be tempered by the tongue-lashing he got the same day from Mayor David Miller and a chorus of councillors and candidates, who chastised Ford for his unsupported allegations that city hall is corrupt.

432
The number of voters surveyed across Toronto from July 30 to Aug. 5.

"If there's a single piece of evidence or even a hint of something that Councillor Ford thinks is improper," he should take it to the city's auditor general and integrity commissioner, Miller told reporters.

Ford was quoted in a local newspaper as saying that the recent award of an untendered 20-year contract to Boardwalk Pub operator Tuggs Inc. "stinks to high heaven."

He referred specifically to closed-doors discussions, called "in-camera" meetings, alleging, "these in-camera meetings, there's more corruption and skullduggery going on in there than I've ever seen in my life."

Established players taking notice of mobile upstart
Unknown how many have dropped service: Analyst

New wireless player Wind Mobile says it has attracted more than 100,000 subscribers in its first six months in a market that's experiencing growth and increased competition.

Wind Mobile has taken away customers from established players Rogers, Bell and Telus, Wind Mobile chairman Anthony Lacavera said Thursday.

"There's a huge trend toward smartphones and data use," Lacavera said.

"I think it's predominantly smartphone customers," he said of Wind's subscriber base.

Wind Mobile launched last December in Toronto and also operates in Vancouver, Calgary, Edmonton and Ottawa.

BMO Capital Markets telecom analyst Peter Rhamey said he expected Wind to garner about 60,000 subscribers.

While Wind's subscribers have exceeded analyst expectations, Deloitte Canada analyst Duncan Stewart said it would be interesting to know how many are "steals" from the major players and how many are new customers who didn't have mobile phones previously.

Dozens nabbed in drug bust

More than two dozen people have been arrested in a drug investigation in the Greater Toronto Area.

Several police forces were involved in the three-month operation called Project Nexus.

Police say about $5.8 million in drugs — including ketamine, cocaine, ecstasy and marijuana — were seized.

Weapons, including Tasers and an Uzi submachine gun, were also seized by police, along with more than $100,000 and three vehicles.

Between June and July, 29 people were arrested and charged with drug and property-related offences, and 20 of those people also face firearms charges. Police have issued arrest warrants for two others.

Graffiti honours fallen soldiers

Artist teams with Flemingdon Park youth for soldier mural

AMY DEMPSEY//TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

▶ Const. Scott Mills, co-ordinator of Legal Graffiti Art project, with Highway of Heroes mural artists Nazley Pakrow, 18, Tanzila

Graffiti artist Jessey Pacho stops mid-sentence as the sheet of blue tarp shifts and peels off the wall behind him to reveal — a few minutes earlier than expected — his team's masterpiece.

"Oh no," Pacho says as the tarp hits the ground. The 22-year-old pauses, shrugs it off and grins.

"Well, there's our mural, guys," he says to the few dozen people gathered for the unveiling on Thursday.

Laughter and applause echo off the alley walls.

The just-finished Highway of Heroes mural, located across from the coroner's office at 26 Grenville St., the end of the highway route from Canadian Forces Base Trenton, is a tribute to Canada's fallen soldiers.

The mural is part of the Graffiti Transformation Project, an annual community program that hires marginalized youth who face barriers to employment.

Toronto police Legal Graffiti Art co-ordinator, Const. Scott Mills, came up with the idea for the Highway of Heroes project.

More than 150 Canadian military personnel have died during the mission in Afghanistan since it began in 2002.

Storey proposal batted down

54 There were concerns about the impact of an extra 54 housing units on the area.

An application by Urban Capital Property Group to add six more storeys to a building it is developing near Yonge and Bloor streets was refused by the committee of adjustment Wednesday.

The property at 75 St. Nicholas St. is to remain a 29-storey condominium, potentially leaving in the lurch buyers of some of the units planned for those extra floors.

The developers had originally applied to build a 44-storey building on the property in 2008; the city approved a 29-storey building last fall instead. Urban Capital requested six more storeys in May and was not heard until Wednesday.

According to Anita MacLeod, manager of the Toronto and East York committee of adjustment, the request was refused because it does not maintain the intent of a site-specific bylaw passed six months ago by city council limiting the height of the building. "(It was) indicated that if the bylaw was passed six months ago and council wanted another six storeys, they should've dealt with it six months ago," said MacLeod.

A spokesperson for Urban Capital was unavailable to comment. When the Toronto Star reached the Nicholas Presentation Centre on Thursday, an employee who refused to give his name said several units in the proposed six storeys have been sold.

Chrysler investing $27M in Etobicoke parts plant

Chrysler Canada is spending $27.2 million on new technology for its auto parts casting plant in Etobicoke, preserving the factory's 280 jobs.

The plant, which currently produces aluminum die castings and pistons, is being prepared to make vehicle suspension parts called crossmembers starting in the third quarter of 2011, Chrysler said Thursday.

"We welcome this investment in the Etobicoke Casting Plant as it is an acknowledgment of the high-quality components produced by our skilled workforce for many years," stated Michael Butz, manager of the west-end plant.

"Being able to expand our part portfolio better aligns with Chrysler's long-term product strategy, which ensures the future for this facility," he added.

Canadian Auto Workers president Ken Lewenza said he was "thrilled" with the investment.

"This will help preserve and enhance jobs in the city and give a greater measure of security to our members and their families well into the future," he said.

- Chrysler currently employs about 7,500 people at assembly plants in Brampton and Windsor, as well as the Etobicoke casting plant.
- Rumour has it the Brampton plant will begin building a small number of Fiat's Lancia-brand luxury vehicles beginning in 2012.
- Fiat CEO Sergio Marchionne, who is notoriously secretive, has said he hasn't ruled out manufacturing Fiats in Brampton, including Alfa Romeo-brand vehicles.
- The Brampton plant currently builds the Chrysler 300C, Dodge Challenger and Dodge Charger. It's running on two shifts and has about 800 workers on layoff.

Khadr's lawyer faints in court

Medical issue could delay trial U.S. special forces soldier testifies he shot Toronto-born Khadr during raid

The war-crimes trial of Omar Khadr was thrown into disarray late Thursday after his defence lawyer collapsed in front of shocked participants in the courtroom and was taken to hospital.

Lt.-Col. Jon Jackson was taken from the Guantanamo Bay courthouse by ambulance and was on morphine for the pain, possibly related to recent gall-bladder surgery.

Bryan Broyles, deputy chief defence counsel with the Office of Military Commissions, said Jackson might need to be flown to the U.S. for treatment.

That raised the spectre of a lengthy delay in the proceedings.

The incident occurred almost at the end of the day as Jackson, Khadr's Pentagon-appointed lawyer, was cross-examining a witness who testified to shooting Khadr twice in the back eight years ago.

Khadr's Edmonton-based lawyer, Dennis Edney, has no standing in the U.S. military court, and Khadr recently fired his American civilian lawyers.

That left only Jackson to defend him of a charge that could see him imprisoned for life. "Omar Khadr has one attorney, that is Lt.-Col. Jon Jackson," Broyles said. THE CANADIAN PRESS

McGuinty addresses health agencies

Ontario's Local Health Integration Networks are an important way to get local input on critical health-care decisions, but they need to do a better job of consulting their communities, Premier Dalton McGuinty said Thursday.

It was the first time McGuinty commented on the LHINs since ombudsman Andre Marin issued a scathing report Tuesday accusing local health agencies of holding "illegal" secret meetings to discuss plans to restructure hospital services and close emergency rooms. THE CANADIAN PRESS

CENSUS DEBATE

Council pushes for reversal

The National Statistics Council is urging the Harper government to reverse its decision to make the long-form census voluntary.

The group applauds the Tories for moving to eliminate the threat of jail for anyone who refuses to fill out mandatory federal surveys, but it is still pushing for a full reversal. It suggests the tweaks announced Wednesday by Industry Minister Tony Clement amount to an admission it's wrong to turn the compulsory long-form census into a voluntary survey.

Clement announced that questions on language skills will be added to the obligatory short-form census — a move aimed at placating a francophone group that has gone to court to block elimination of the longer census.

Tweeting gets easier

Button allows users to share links without cutting and pasting

Tweeting your favourite stories may be getting a little easier.

Twitter introduced a "tweet" button on Thursday that websites can place alongside their content. The button serves as an invitation to Twitter's legion of users to share what they're reading without having to copy and paste the web link.

Pressing the button automatically creates a shortened link that appears in a pop-up box tied to the Twitter user's account. A comment can be added next to the link, staying within the 140-character limit of Twitter's messaging service. After the message is dispatched, Twitter will suggest people the sender might want to follow, based on the story's topic and its writer.

Tweet savvy

Websites already using the tweet button include Gannett Co.'s USA Today and Google Inc.'s video site YouTube.

The new tweet button will likely make Twitter an even more powerful tool for attracting online traffic. As it is, Twitter says nearly one-fourth of its tweets contain web links.

Twitter's new sharing tool is similar to a "retweet" button that another service called TweetMeme has offered since 2009. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Little Leaguers go 'wild' in post-game brawl

Tensions ran high for week before championships

Heckling by members of a team from Quebec sitting in the stands at the Canadian Senior Little League Championships escalated into a brawl Thursday with players on the host team from Saint John, N.B., police said.

Sgt. Pat Bonner of Saint John police said the brawl erupted after tensions all week long between players — aged 15 and 16 — on the teams from Valleyfield, Que., and Saint John.

Members of the Valleyfield team were in the stands at Memorial Field, he said, heckling as Saint John played Edmonton in the semi-final.

After Edmonton won the game 1-0, he said players from Saint John jumped a fence.

"It just went crazy all so quickly and you weren't really sure who was fighting and who was trying to pull people off."
NORAH SULLIVAN-O'TOOLE

"That's when the fight broke out," he said.

Bonner said a woman in her 70s fell to the ground as a result of the melee of people "grabbing and shoving." She was taken to hospital as a precaution, but Bonner said no one was seriously injured.

Norah Sullivan-O'Toole was watching the game when she said some members of the Quebec team began hurling obscenities.

"It was trash talk that just went wild," said Sullivan-O'Toole.

After being heckled for seven innings then losing the game, she said some players "just lost it."

She said her husband tried to stop a Saint John player from confronting the other team, but he was pulled back by other non-uniformed young people.

Neither Saint John or Valleyfield made the final.

Little League Canada says it is reviewing what happened.

Canadians limit Internet use more than neighbours

Checking email under the covers or between bites of food?

It may seem a bit extreme, but a survey by search engine Yahoo found that it's a digital habit.

The survey found that just 27 per cent of Canadians ban using the Internet at meal times and while they're in bed.

Americans are even more lax about Internet use in bed with only 19 per cent saying they impose a ban, while 22 per cent responded they ban its use at meal times, said Heather Cabot, Yahoo's Web Life editor.

"It seems like Canadians have more boundaries and seem to be a little bit more concerned about separating their online and off-line time and making sure they reserve time for both," Cabot said.

The survey found that 33 per cent of Canadians and 41 per cent of Americans check their email as soon as they wake up.

Cabot said people are more connected than they were 15 years ago.

27 per cent of Canadians ban the Internet at meals.

"I think in many ways it has brought us closer together," she said of Internet use.

She noted how people can stay in touch with family and friends as events are unfolding.

Yahoo surveyed 1,510 online Canadians between the ages of 25 and 64 to find out how the Internet has changed the lives of consumers.

▶ Law enforcement officials leave a hair salon in Gentry, Ark., after the business was allegedly robbed by a man and woman early on Wednesday.

Fugitive hunt fizzles in U.S.

Investigators have searched cross-country for elusive duo Witnesses say latest heist wasn't them

Law enforcement officers descended on back roads and densely wooded terrain in northwest Arkansas, following a lead that apparently took them nowhere.

Word had spread that a local beauty salon may have been robbed by a couple who fancy themselves a modern-day Bonnie and Clyde and have eluded capture since a brazen Arizona prison break.

Officers in body armour and camouflage pored over maps as a helicopter whirred overhead Wednesday.

A mobile command post took over the church parking lot. Residents gossiped but were on guard, knowing the pair being sought was suspected in a bloody, multistate crime spree.

It may have been all for naught.

By evening, officials said their investigation gave them "no reason to believe" that John McCluskey and Casslyn Welch had pulled off the heist at the Kut & Kurl salon in Gentry, Ark.

$210M facelift planned for CFB Borden

Canadian military recruit training centre to get new housing MacKay says work will benefit economy

Call it stimulus in uniform. Defence Minister Peter MacKay announced more infrastructure improvements Thursday for the country's military recruit training centre.

Canadian Forces Base Borden, near Barrie, Ont., will get a series of buildings, including housing and a new military police training academy.

MacKay said construction work will benefit the local economy as the country continues its economic recovery. Combined with previously announced construction work, the federal government is now committed to investing $210 million in the camp.

CFB Borden, which is nearly a century old, is credited as the birthplace of the Canadian air force. Canadian pilots first began training there during the First World War.

The purchase of new planes and tanks usually grab headlines, but access-to-information documents show many of Canada's military bases are in greater need of upgrade and repair.

MacKay said the investment is also necessary because of the government's commitment to expand the military to 70,000 regular force members.

"We're hiring more people (and) we have to have the accommodations and the training facilities — places where they work, train and raise their families," MacKay said.

PREGNANT MP HOME FROM HOSPITAL

Helena Guergis has been released from hospital following a car accident late Thursday morning at CFB Borden in central Ontario.

The Simcoe-Grey MP, who is pregnant, was sent to Stevenson Memorial Hospital, in Alliston, Ont., after the crash.

Angela Foulds, at the MP's constituency office, says the MP was given the option of waiting for test results at home or in hospital and is now resting at home.

Guergis was at the military base outside Barrie, Ont., for an infrastructure announcement by Defence Minister Peter MacKay when the accident occurred.

A car hit the vehicle Guergis and her assistant were in as they were driving through an intersection, according to Foulds.

Gay marriages in California by next week?

Defenders of Proposition 8 say they intend to block the marriages Gay-marriage ban passed in late 2008

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ A Prop 8 supporter

The federal judge who struck down California's gay marriage ban said Thursday that same-sex weddings can resume next week unless an appeals court intervenes before then.

The news raised hopes among gay couples that they soon could tie the knot after years of agonizing delays.

"We just want equal rights. We're tired of being second-class citizens," said Amber Fox, 35, who went to the Beverly Hills Municipal Courthouse on Thursday morning in hopes of marrying her partner. The couple wed in Massachusetts in June, but wanted to make it official in their home state.

The Foxes left the courthouse without exchanging vows after the ruling by Chief U.S. District Judge Vaughn Walker in a case many believe is destined for the Supreme Court.

Walker decided to give gay marriage opponents until next Wednesday to ask the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals to block same-sex weddings while it decides their appeal. If the appeals court chooses not to get involved, Walker said county clerks may begin issuing marriage licenses to same-sex couples at 5 p.m. on Wednesday.

Walker last week struck down the state's gay-marriage ban, known as Proposition 8, saying that the voter-approved law is unconstitutional.

▶ Suriname's President Desi Bouterse attends a military parade after his swearing-in ceremony in Paramaribo, Suriname, Thursday.

Bouterse's return to power has many wondering if the country will return to human-rights violations and become a major drug outlet

A former coup leader, convicted drug trafficker and accused murderer swore to uphold the country's laws at his inauguration ceremony Thursday without mentioning concerns in Suriname and abroad about his return to power — this time through the democratic process.

President Desi Bouterse pledged in a speech to fight corruption and help impoverished communities in the vast rainforest hinterland of South America's smallest nation.

Bouterse did not address his history as Suriname's two-time dictator, which made his election last month by parliament uncomfortable for members of the international community.

Travellers warned of superbug

37 Number of people in Britain who have returned from India or Pakistan after surgery and have been identified as being infected by the superbug.

Doctors in Alberta are warning people that there are risks involved in travelling to foreign lands to get medical help, and they're citing a new antibiotic-resistant superbug emerging in southern Asia as a prime example.

The province confirmed Thursday that it had one reported case of infection in the spring.

Dr. Gerry Predy, medical officer of health, would say only that the individual had been in a hospital in India before being infected and was discharged after being treated back in Canada.

Dr. Mark Joffe, Alberta Health Services' senior medical director, said anyone considering travel for medical treatment anywhere in the world should weigh the risks.

"I would advise individuals to look at their options carefully and to understand that there are consequences to decisions," Joffe told a news conference.

"There are potential complications to any procedures, anywhere they are done."

The superbug is already widespread in India. It has also has been detected in Australia, the United States, the Netherlands and Sweden.

The jurors said Thursday they have not discussed 11 counts of wire fraud. They indicated they have discussed the remaining 11 counts and appear to be deadlocked on them. The jury had sent a note to Judge James B. Zagel on Wednesday saying they were stuck, and Zagel had asked for clarification.

DOES THIS SOUND LIKE YOUR DAY?

How does a weekday start for you? With a piercing beep from your clock radio? With that song your Top-40 station plays every morning at 7:00 a.m., jolting you out of a too-short sleep? Don't worry: you'll catch a few more winks in the shower. And if you can't, there's a mug of thin coffee waiting in the kitchen. It's programmed to be perked before you are. Soon you'll be hunched over that mug, considering the traffic report you just heard on the morning news. Road closure. Major backups. How will you get to work on time? The moment your mind starts to clear, you get planning. Fifteen minutes later, your motionless car sits among a hundred others on a choked highway. The radio's just static now. You clench the wheel. Too much caffeine's bad for the nerves, but so is too little sleep.Twenty minutes late for work. Your desk-chair groans under your weight. Was it groaning that much six months ago? Is trans-fat worse for you than caffeine? Try to stay grounded. You rub your fingers against the grey fabric of your cubicle wall, but the computer screen zaps you anyway. Sixty-four new emails. You spend the next three hours bent over your keyboard. It occurs to you that your spine hasn't fully straightened since you got out of bed. You stand up immediately. Something pops in your shoulder. Careful! That's your phone-holding shoulder. You bend down to grab your satchel and pain tweaks the small of your back. You hobble to the lunchroom.

TAI CHI IS A MIND AND BODY WORKOUT.

Lunch is leftover cheeseburger pizza. It's unhealthy, but it's fast. That was also your excuse last night, when you decided to order it. You hunch over your re-sealable container, scooping dollops of mozzarella with your right hand, turning the pages of a manual with your left. When else are you going to study for your night course? Evening's for the spouse and kids. Don't get grease on the pages. Soon you're back at your desk. Lunch-hour was really only 40 minutes, since you had banking to do. The lineup wasn't too long, so you grabbed a latte. You need it to stay alert until 6:30. If you really work hard this afternoon, there may even be time for the gym tonight. Here comes one of your bosses. She gives you a friendly slap on your bad shoulder. Tough break about the traffic jam. But that's not the client's problem. Looks like we're all having a long night. She wanders off, chuckling. Forget the gym, you say to yourself. That latte's not sitting well, either.The hours pass, the sun goes down. Lit by the glow of pot-lights overhead, you stop to think: Every day you pass fit, smiling people on your way to work. They're not rich. Some of them have jobs like yours. But they don't look unhealthy, stressed, or worn out… they don't look like you. Somehow, somewhere, they've found a rhythm your life lacks. It's about time you learned their secret.

WikiLeaks warning sparks U.S. anger

WikiLeaks frontman Julian Assange warned Thursday his organization is preparing to release the rest of the secret Afghan war documents it has on file.

The Pentagon warned that would be more damaging to security and risk more lives than the organization's initial release of some 76,000 war documents.

That extraordinary disclosure laid bare classified military documents covering the war in Afghanistan from 2004 to 2010.

It angered U.S. officials, energized critics of the NATO-led campaign, and drew the attention of the Taliban, which has promised to use the material to track down people it considers traitors.

▶ Julian Assange has warned of more disclosures.

The whistle-blower group has said the remaining documents are being held back from publication so that it could comb through them to ensure Afghan lives were not put at risk.

The Pentagon described the prospective publication as the "height of irresponsibility."

Old, alone and forgotten

Scandal of Japan's lost seniors

The plight of old people in rapidly-greying Japan has reached scandal proportions.

The nation has been jolted by sad tales of old people, isolated and forgotten, simply slipping out of touch with society.

Police discovered that Sogen Kato, who would have been 111, had actually been dead for 32 years, his decayed and partially mummified body still in his home.

The woman listed as Tokyo's oldest, Fusa Furuya, born in 1897, is also missing.

Her last registered residence was long ago converted into a vacant lot.

In Kobe, officials are trying to track down more than 100 unaccounted-for centenarians.

Japan has 40,399 people 100 or older, latest figures show.

Crime, alcoholism and suicide among the elderly are rising because of low incomes, unstable employment and poor living conditions.

"People used to take care of their aging parents. But with rapid changes in lifestyles, the very idea of taking care of one's parents seems to be waning," said Katsuya Inoue, a professor at Tsukuba University.

Heavens! Meteor shower's a real sky-high show

The biggest and brightest meteor shower of 2010 was expected to dazzle those surveying the skies across the country Thursday night.

Astronomers have said that under the right conditions, sky watchers would be able to see up to 60 meteors per hour in the Perseid meteor shower.

Terence Dickinson, an amateur astronomer and editor of SkyNews magazine, said the large shower spectacle occurs each year.

Dickinson said the shower happens because the Earth is passing through a stream of debris that orbits the sun and plunges into the Earth's atmosphere at 50 times the speed of a rifle's bullet.

Political ads nixed in Niagara

Political ads in Niagara Falls are no longer allowed on city-owned facilities such as bus stops and hockey arenas.

Niagara Falls city council made the decision earlier this week at a community services meeting.

The council says the new advertising policy would prevent the city of Niagara Falls from endorsing any particular candidate.

MPs and MPPs would be prevented from taking out ads as well under the rule.

The policy adds to a previous one that prevents candidates from placing lawn signs on public property.

Hamilton family alleges racial slurs, intimidation

A Hamilton man is facing criminal harassment charges after victims allege he subjected them to racial slurs and intimidating behaviour over a two-year period.

Police say they were called to a home around 10:30 a.m. on Wednesday to investigate a case of harassment.

While there, the victims alleged that over the course of a couple of years they lived in fear because of racial slurs and bad behaviour from the suspect.

The victims are a 46-year-old man, a 32-year-old woman and their children.

Rory Graham, 29, has been charged with criminal harassment and will appear in court Friday for a bail hearing.

Getting the best from your bubbly

- Science confirms barman's view: Chill and pour like beer
- Study important for glassmakers as well as drinkers and vintners

Science proves

The researchers used bottles of 2008 vintage from Cooperative Nogent l'Abbesse. The result:

- More gas Champagne poured like beer retained more gas than Champagne poured to create a head of "mousse," or foam.
- Cold The colder the bottle, the less gas was lost.
- Thorough? The study did not say how much Champagne was uncorked in the interests of science

French scientists say they have settled a question that has long divided Champagne lovers: How best to pour the bubbly?

At an angle, not straight down.

The scientists at the University of Reims say pouring bubbly at a slant, as you would a beer, preserves more of the tiny gas bubbles that improve the drink's flavour and aromas.

The researchers say they looked at two ways of pouring Champagne: The "traditional" method, with the liquid poured vertically to hit the bottom of the Champagne flute; and the "beer-like way," executed by tilting the glass and gently sliding in the Champagne.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Professionals knew

The verdict in favour of sideways-pouring came as no surprise to Guillaume Ranvier, the head of food and beverage at the Champagne Bar at the Hyatt Regency Paris-Madeleine.

Ranvier said the establishment's barman always pours Champagne into a tilted glass to keep the bubbles in.

"But of course, when I pour a glass of Champagne I pour it like that."

'Cancer' turns out to be little green sprout

MERRILY LUNSFORD/ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ Doctors found a pea growing in Ron Sveden's lung.

- Man feeling much better after surgery removes vegetable

The doctor confirmed the good news for Ron Sveden once the mass in his left lung came back from the lab: He didn't have cancer. He had a pea sprouting inside his chest.

It was a long way from the diagnosis Sveden, 75, had feared when he arrived at Cape Cod Hospital at the end of May.

The former teacher, who also had spent years running a retail fish market and smokehouse, had seen his already-frail health begin to falter further in prior months. He already knew he had emphysema, but lately was having bad coughing spells.

His doctors decided their best option was to go inside and see for themselves.

"There was a lot of inflammation there and I thought, OK, there's a tumour at the bottom of this," said Dr. Jeff Spillane, who went in with a scope.

"A couple of days in a dark, wet environment, I'd sprout too."
DR. JEFF SPILLANE

But the more Spillane probed at the encrusted mass, the clearer it became that it was no tumour.

"It was pretty grungy, but it looked like a pea," Spillane said. "I sent it to the pathologist. They said it was a vegetable."

It took less than half an hour to clear away the sprout, drain some of the fluid that had built up around it, and help restore the lung's capacity.

After his surgery in June, Sveden spent three weeks in the hospital and a week in rehab. He said he feels fine now and is still amazed that something as small as a pea could create such a big health headache.

Iran airs alleged confession

Iranian state television broadcast a purported confession by a woman who had faced death by stoning on an adultery conviction, a case that has drawn U.S. concern, an offer of asylum from Brazil and international protests.

Human Rights Watch says Sakineh Mohammadi Ashtiani, 43, was first convicted in May 2006 of having an "illicit relationship" with two men after the death of her husband and was sentenced by a court to 99 lashes.

Later that year she was also convicted of adultery and sentenced to be stoned, even though she retracted a confession that she claims was made under duress.

Iran lifted the stoning sentence for the time being after international outrage over the brutality of the punishment.

Liberals in mourning after tragic accident

There's a gaping hole in Michael Ignatieff's inner circle following the sudden death of his communications director in a motorcycle accident.

Mario Lague was on his way into work Thursday at the Liberal leader's office when he was involved in a collision with an SUV.

His death comes just three days after Ignatieff's principal secretary, Jean Marc Fournier, resigned to take up a post in Quebec Premier Jean Charest's cabinet.

Ignatieff, who was in Iqaluit as part of his summer-long, cross-country tour, issued a statement expressing his "great sadness" at Lague's death.

"A man of many talents and accomplishments, Mario was a beloved member of our staff and a valued personal adviser to me and the entire Liberal team," Ignatieff said. "While we will miss Mario's extensive talents, we will miss most of all his warmth."

Cops nab suspect in stabbing spree

A suspect in a string of 20 stabbings that terrorized people across three states and left five dead was arrested in front of startled passengers at an airport gate as he tried to board a plane for Israel, officials said Thursday.

A judge in Flint, Mich., where the attacks began in late May, signed a warrant Thursday charging Elias Abuelazam, 33, with assault with intent to murder in connection with a July 27 stabbing.

Antwoine Marshall, 26, of Flint, the victim of that attack, told The Associated Press that the FBI visited him at 3 a.m. to show him a picture of the man arrested in Atlanta, and he identified him as the assailant.

Marshall said he was going into his apartment when the assailant asked for help fixing his car, and he was stabbed twice when he opened the hood. Three of his organs were cut during the attack, leaving a long scar. Authorities still don't know the motive.

Bail denied in abuse convictions

A man who is waiting to be sentenced after he was convicted of sexually molesting two boys in the 1970s was denied bail in a Halifax court Thursday.

Ernest Fenwick MacIntosh was found guilty last month on 13 charges of indecent assault and gross indecency. Details of the evidence presented during the bail hearing are banned from publication.

MacIntosh is scheduled to be sentenced on Sept. 14.

Poultry top culprit in food poisoning

Cooking chicken on the grill this summer? Be careful. Health officials say poultry continues to be the leading culprit in food poisoning outbreaks.

Chicken, turkey and other poultry accounted for 17 per cent of the foodborne illness outbreaks reported to the U.S. government. Beef and leafy vegetables were close behind, at 16 per cent and 14 per cent.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention released the data Thursday, based on reports from 48 states and Puerto Rico in 2007. But experts said these numbers represent only a fraction of U.S. foodborne illnesses.

Several things can cause an outbreak. For example, an infected person might contaminate the food while handling it. Or contaminated food may be left out at room temperature for hours, allowing bacteria to multiply. It may not be cooked enough to kill the bacteria.

BMO tells the government to continue stimulus

The global recovery is so fragile that many industrialized countries may need more government stimulus rather than an exit strategy to reign in deficits, the Bank of Montreal said Thursday.

In the wake of a week of negative economic news all pointing to a stalling recovery, the bank says many economies, and particularly the United States, should put fiscal restraint on the back burner for now.

Even in Canada, where the situation is not as dire, governments should not be adamant that next March will mark the end of stimulus spending, the bank says.

"The wrong diagnoses at this point could lead economic policy-makers astray with potentially-disastrous consequences," BMO deputy chief economist Douglas Porter wrote in a report.

"The long-term fiscal cost from a lengthy period of subpar growth would be much more damaging than a small down payment now — a stitch in time saves nine."

Last Friday, Canada and the U.S. reported a retreat from employment gains.

Stimulus needed

- After a strong initial rebound from recession beginning last fall, both the U.S. and Canadian economies have slowed sharply. Europe, as a whole, has shown almost no growth, although some countries are in recovery.
- Last Friday, Canada and the U.S. reported a retreat from employment gains, and on Wednesday, both said their trade deficits ballooned in June.
- The weakness appears to be more evident by the day. The U.S. said Thursday initial jobless claims rose to the highest level since February last week to 484,000, when analysts had been predicting a drop.

The confessed mastermind of bomb attacks against World Cup soccer fans said Thursday he had hoped to kill many more Americans in the explosions in which 76 people, including one American, died last month.

Reporters learned at a press conference in which four arrested suspects appeared that the death toll from the three explosions would have been much higher if one of them hadn't backed out at the last minute. Haruna Luyima, the younger brother of the confessed plotter, said he had been tasked with planting a fourth device at a dance hall.

"But when I reached there I wondered why so many people watching football on television should be killed over nothing," the 27-year-old said.

Williams fires at Quebec for interference

Says Premier Jean Charest has sent a letter objecting to the application for a marine cable to ship energy

ADRIAN WYLD/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ Premier Danny Williams

Two governments in Atlantic Canada scolded Premier Jean Charest on Thursday for interfering in their energy plans, with Premier Danny Williams accusing Quebec of showing "unmitigated gall" by objecting to its financing application for a subsea transmission line for power from Labrador.

Newfoundland and Labrador and Nova Scotia are trying to get funding for a subsea cable to ship surplus power from Labrador across the Gulf of St. Lawrence to Cape Breton.

Williams says they've applied for funds from a federal infrastructure program designed to promote public-private projects.

"We have been informed that a letter has gone from the province of Quebec, perhaps, I think, under the signature of the Premier Jean Charest, objecting to the application," Williams said. "I mean, the unmitigated gall of the province of Quebec to not stick to their own business, to basically stick their nose in the affairs of Atlantic Canada."

Williams has long accused Quebec of trying to block development of the Lower Churchill hydroelectric project in Labrador by denying access to its transmission lines because it wants to protect Hydro-Quebec's interests.

Two months ago, Williams said he was tired of Quebec's "patronizingly colonial attitude" when it comes to the development of the Lower Churchill, a megaproject that Newfoundland says would generate three million megawatts of electricity.

Is the world facing a climate calamity?

‘No time to waste’ as summit gears up to fight global warming

Floods, fires, melting ice and feverish heat:

From smoke-choked Moscow to water-soaked Pakistan and the High Arctic, the planet is having a midsummer breakdown.

It’s a sign of troubling climate change already under way, scientists say.

The weather-related cataclysms of July and August fit patterns predicted by climate scientists, says the Geneva-based World Meteorological Organization.

The experts see an urgent need for better ways to forecast extreme events like Russia’s heat wave and the record deluge devastating Pakistan.

They’ll discuss such tools in meetings this month and next in Europe and America, under United Nations, U.S. and British government sponsorship.

“There is no time to waste,” because societies must be equipped to deal with global warming, says British government climatologist Peter Stott.

Wacky weather

Storms and heat have left many parts of the world reeling. Three examples:

- Russia: It has been the hottest summer ever recorded in Russia with Moscow temperatures topping 38 C for the first time.
- China: The worst floods in decades have hit the northwest province of Gansu. There, floods and landslides have killed 1,100. Six hundred are missing.
- Arctic: A chunk of ice the size of Manhattan has broken off the Petermann Glacier in Greenland’s far northwest. In the Arctic ocean, the summer melt has reached unprecedented proportions.

The scientists’ grim prediction for the world: More frequent and more intense extreme weather events due to global warming. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

U.S. Marines battle floods

A shipload of U.S. Marines and helicopters arrived to boost relief efforts in flooded Pakistan on Thursday.

But Prime Minister Yousuf Raza Gilani said his country needs more international help to cope with one of the worst natural disasters in its history.

The United Nations warned the crisis is far from over, saying dams in Sindh province could still burst in the coming days.

More rain fell around the country, and monsoon season is forecast to last several weeks still.

UN officials estimate up to a quarter of the country is or has been affected by the floods, though those areas were not necessarily under water.

The government has been sharply criticized for a slow and patchy response to the floods, which have killed 1,500 people and left an estimated seven million people needing emergency assistance, their homes destroyed, damaged or inundated with muddy water and unlivable.

Flood survivors already short on food and water began the Muslim fasting month of Ramadan, a normally festive, social time marked this year by misery and fear.

“I cannot disobey God, so I am fasting as it is part of my faith no matter what the conditions are,” said Fazal Rabi, 47, in the village of Akbarpura in the northwest.

Rainstorms boost landslide misery

Rain caused new landslides and swelled rivers Thursday in the remote northwestern China region where hundreds have died in massive slides triggered by weekend flooding.

An overnight deluge triggered mudslides that swept away six houses in Xizangba village, blocked a river near Libazi village, and obstructed a key road used to ferry relief goods, said officials in Gansu province.

Another mudslide in nearby Tianshui city buried seven people, though two were quickly rescued, reports said.

In another part of Gansu, 250,000 residents of Chengxian county faced the threat of flooding as waters rose in the Donghe River, local officials said.

- At least 45,000 people have left their homes in Gansu’s Zhouqu district. Thirty thousand tents have been delivered to the area.
- Water is too polluted to drink, sparking numerous cases of dysentery, reports said.

Russians breathing clearly

The skies were clear over Moscow Thursday, giving residents a desperately needed break from air pollution thanks to favourable winds and some success in fighting wildfires that have choked the capital with clouds of acrid smog.

People walked through the streets without the masks that have become ubiquitous.

Weather experts warned that the smog could return over the weekend after winds change again, but chief of Russia's main weather service said the unprecedented heat wave that has tormented Russia would end next week.

Residents of two villages southeast of Moscow were evacuated Thursday because of advancing fires, the regional police said.

Embattled steward says he wants to return to work

Slater faces charges of criminal mischief, reckless endangerment and trespassing His boyfriend says he is a "lovely, classy and beautiful person."

LOUIS LANZANO/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ Jet Blue flight attendant Steven Slater, middle, is led from a Bronx correctional facility to an awaiting van by an ABC field producer after posting bail, Tuesday, in New York.

The fed-up flight attendant who set a new standard for quitting when he abandoned his job via an emergency chute apparently isn't as much of a quitter as everyone thought.

Steven Slater, 38, said through his lawyer Thursday that he loves flying and wants to go back to work.

"His hope is to return to the aviation business," his attorney, Howard Turman, told reporters as Slater stood by his side outside his home in Queens. Flying, he added, "is in his blood."

Slater's career appeared to crash and burn Monday when he went onto the public address system after a JetBlue flight from Pittsburgh, cursed out a passenger he said had treated him rudely, and then made an I'm-outta-here exit down an emergency chute at Kennedy Airport. He was later arrested.

Asked about Slater's desire to return to work, JetBlue spokesman Mateo Lleras said: "As of right now, he has been released of duty pending the investigation. There's nothing more I can say."

Slater's actions have prompted an outpouring of support from people who have fantasized about making a similar exit from an unpleasant job, although passengers have come forward in the past couple of days to criticize him as brusque and cranky throughout the 90-minute trip.

One passenger portrayed Slater as the instigator, saying he cursed without provocation at a woman who had asked about her bag.

Slater would not talk about his actions Thursday. He smiled silently for most of the 10-minute news conference, then offered a brief thanks to the public, saying, "It's been amazing, the support and love ... everything that's been brought to me."

Turman said the entire affair can be blamed on a "lack of civility on the part of one passenger."

After the plane landed, he and other travellers heard Slater and other crew members repeatedly instruct a passenger to remain seated until the jet reached the gate. Slater ultimately had to leave his seat to get the person to sit down.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Is Steven Slater a hero?

Steven Slater's abrupt exit from the plane almost instantly turned him into an online hero, with many people saying they've dreamed of walking off the job in such a grand fashion. More than 100,000 people had joined a Facebook page supporting his actions.

Slater's ex-wife came to his defence Thursday.

Some passengers said he had a large cut or welt on his head — sustained, his lawyer said, when he tried to help a passenger with a bag too big for the overhead bins.

- 'What?' Lauren Dominijanni, 25, of Pittsburgh, said that during the trip, when she asked Slater for a wipe to clean up coffee that had been spilled on her seat, he rolled his eyes, blurted an exasperated "What?" and gestured to the gash on his head. He then told her he needed to take care of himself first, she said.
- Snackless Other passengers said throughout the flight, he slammed galley doors and overhead bins unnecessarily and put an apparent early end to snack service.
- Common? Others said until Slater's intercom rant, his interactions appeared curt, but not unusually so.
- Bag A radio executive for Westwood One overheard Slater telling a passenger at the start of the flight that her bag wouldn't fit in the overhead bin.

Hortons sells stake in bakery

Swiss company wants to expand customer base ◗ Bakery will continue to supply Tim Hortons

Tim Hortons Inc. is selling its 50 per cent interest in Maidstone Bakeries to joint venture partner Aryzta AG for nearly half a billion dollars after the Swiss company invoked a contract provision forcing Tims to buy or sell the stake.

"We made the decision that clearly this was of much greater economic value to our partner than to us, and on that basis we made the decision to sell," said president and chief executive Don Schroeder.

Schroeder noted that Tims still has supply agreements for donuts and Timbits to be produced at the Brantford, Ont., facility until at least early 2016.

Maidstone currently operates at only 55 per cent of its capacity with Tim Hortons as its sole customer.

- Expansion Aryzta, which provides specialty baked goods to restaurants around the world, says it is looking to expand capacity at the bakery and pursue agreements with other restaurants.

DOUBLE THANK-YOU IS SINCERE IN THE GLOBAL FREE TRADE MARKET

Other people's money

DAVID DESCÔTEAUX

Heard on a bus: "When two people exchange goods and money, one wins and the other loses. Otherwise, there would be no profit."

This reasoning is more common than we might think. And sometimes justifies the hostility to commerce, or free trade. After all, if capitalist pigs profit, the poor suffer, right?

Wrong.

The other day, I paid $2 for a bottle of juice. When the clerk said, "Thank you," I responded, "Thank you." This is more than just a social oddity. There's an economics lesson behind this weird double thank-you moment.

Why does it happen? Because I want the juice more than the bucks, and the store wants the bucks more than the juice. Both of us win.

Two people trade because each wants what the other has more than what he already has. (Remember trading hockey cards?) If one gained and the other lost, the loser wouldn't trade.

We experience the double thank-you moment each time we hit the checkout line in a clothing store, or leave a restaurant, says journalist John Stossel, who coined the "double thank-you moment" phrase.

Trade is win-win — even if you're buying from someone in another country. Exports and imports exist only because of political borders.

"Two people trade because each wants what the other has more than what he already has."

But borders are either accidents of history or the results of politicians' arbitrary decisions. Do you know if Toronto runs a trade deficit with Hamilton? No. Because nobody cares.

There are no imports and exports. There's only what you make and what everyone else makes. Protectionism — taxing foreign goods — is just a tool for politicians to protect their business buddies by preventing us from trading with someone (a foreigner) who offers us a better deal.

As economist Sheldon Richman points out, in trade matters — as in so much else — two words mislead us: "we" and "them." We do not trade with them. Canada does not trade with Japan, or Mexico, or any other group. I trade with you. You trade with me. Smith trades with Nguyen. Individuals trade with individuals.

If the economy continues to tank, governments will be sorely tempted to block foreign products by taxing them. That would be a mistake.

When left free, people trade across borders naturally. Buyers and sellers both benefit.

"Thank you." "Thank you."

David Descôteaux is a freelance economic journalist and an associate researcher at the Montreal Economic Institute.

▶ Season 3 of So You Think You Can Dance Canada begins this Sunday at 9 p.m. on CTV.

5 MINUTES WITH: TARA-JEAN POPOWICH

The Season 2 winner of CTV's hit series So You Think You Can Dance Canada proves there's still plenty of opportunity to pirouette once the cameras stop rolling.

You see a lot of reality show competitors disappear after taking home the big prize. What's life really been like post-win?
It's been hectic. Being on the show, you're in this bubble and you don't realize how much support you have, so coming out of it I wasn't expecting to be so busy. But it's been absolutely amazing. I get to see the world.

What have some of the highlights been?
I got to choreograph and be the main dancer in a Theo Tams video, and I did my first magazine cover for Verve Girl — as a dancer you don't expect to do magazine work, so that was really exciting. (Boyfriend) Vincent (Desjardins) and I taught and performed in India. That experience changed our lives! And we just got back from Paris on Tuesday.

Do you think you can you build on the show's momentum to create a lifelong career?
Yes! Oh my goodness, for sure. What the show gives you is the confidence, the strength, the mentality — it changes you so much as a person because it's probably going to be the most difficult thing you ever go through in your life.

What made it so difficult?
Just the pressure and the stress. You're dancing for 3.5 million people and you're doing what you love, but you're also out of your comfort zone because you're doing styles you've never done before.

Still, at the end of the day you just have to remind yourself that it's all for the love of dance.

Why do you think it's so hard to make dancing a career?
First of all there's not a lot of work here, and Canadians are too nice. So we'll get cut from something and we won't go back because our mentality tells us we can't do it. You need a tough skin, and you can't take things personally because the reason you didn't get hired may have been nothing more than your hair colour. It's not just about talent, because all dancers have talent; it's about mentality, belief.

Changing climate change

Letters & Tweets

We asked: What would you do if you were prime minister?

TORONTO. I would immediately call a press conference and say that I had had a change of heart regarding my skepticism about climate change.

I would appoint a wartime-like panel of scientists and environmentally credible Canadian statespersons to be a "Climate Change Mitigation Cabinet" with broad powers to prepare Canadians for the now-unavoidable severe weather and heat events.

This cabinet would be empowered to seek the best scientific advice to mobilize the economy toward drastically reducing carbon burning.

The tar sands as an economic generator would be slowly phased out, except where the best scientific minds could figure out an economical way of sequestering carbon.

Crown corporations or public-private partnerships would be created to employ every unemployed Canadian for the task of retrofitting all of our old houses and buildings up to the standards of a new building code that would make all buildings efficient in energy use as never before.

Metro Minute at Philosopher's Walk

Walk a mile in your own shoes — just make sure you're treading on the hallowed ground of great minds.

This weekend, why not take a summery stroll down the University of Toronto's Philosopher's Walk, a footpath famous for its statuesque pillars. For those who prefer to spend their time contemplating the great mysteries of life without distraction, allow us to fill you in on its history beforehand.

The gates were originally built at the turn of the 20th century to commemorate the visit of those groundbreaking thinkers, the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall. And there it is. Now go forth, young grasshopper.

IF YOU COULD CHANGE JUST ONE THING ABOUT TORONTO, WHAT WOULD IT BE?

Deborah Soroka
I would have everybody who rides the transit system go through a magic consideration box ... people would say "please" and "excuse me" and offer their seats to seniors.

I'd want to improve the quality of the homeless shelters, and make the people who need them actually want to go there. Homeless shelters ... should be more appealing, and at least safe.

▶ Jennifer Aniston and Thomas Robinson star in The Switch.

Aniston, Bateman play the odd couple

Twist of (sperm donation) fate turns best friends into unconventional parents in romantic comedy The Switch ◐ 'Progressive' script attracted Friends star to role

PHIL BROWN
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

The Switch isn't your average romantic comedy. It's about single woman (Jennifer Aniston) who seeks out a sperm donor rather than waiting for Mr. Right.

Then her best friend (Jason Bateman) accidentally spills the sample and replaces it himself, making them unconventional parents who fall for each other later. Not exactly a plot that could have been recycled from a 1960s rom-com.

"That's why the script jumped out at me immediately," Jennifer Aniston told Metro. "I know many women who have gone through the struggles, heartbreaks and frustrations of fertility. So this is about something very timely and progressive. Plus it also has a love story woven through it that I think is beautiful."

Just when Aniston's observation threatened to make the conversation serious, co-star Jason Bateman jumped in to remind us that it's a comedy.

"I think that we should charge more for that movie than just $10 now," joked the actor. "That sounds like a full package."

That combination of insightful sentiment with sarcastic belly laughs encapsulates the movie as well as the relationship between the two leads.

The former Friends star signed on to the project because as she, "looks for stories that are true to life and relatable," while Bateman responded to the material because it allowed him to explore the awkward and victimized male comedic lead that he's toyed with since Arrested Development.

"I don't know how much of that was just me being interested in that type of character and trying to cram that into what was written though," remarked the actor.

Aniston and Bateman seem to share a genuine friendship both on and off screen. This, of course, begs the age-old question about whether men and women can only be friends. Aniston laughed before responding with a dismissive, "Of course," but Bateman had a different point of view.

"I feel like a guy and a girl can be best friends as long as at least one of them is in a relationship," says the actor. "But as soon as both are single, start the clock, soak it in booze, and watch things happen."

Bateman speaking his mind

On the never-ending Arrested Development movie rumours
"Yesterday somebody said, 'You and Jen should keep working together. How about the Arrested Development movie?' and I responded, 'Actually there's a great role for her, I'm going to pitch her.' I was just having fun, but there were about 25 headlines this morning on crappy blogs saying Jennifer has signed onto the movie. It's frustrating and I hate talking about it because there's never anything significant to report. ... but it's still something that we'd all love to do. Hopefully soon."

On his child actor co-star
"The experience that I had growing as a child actor was helpful because I remember that point of view. It's nerve-wracking. Thomas Robinson was six when we shot. I don't know how someone who is three years into the English language was able to take what was a new language for him and manipulate it and find nuance in a sentence that he barely understands. He's really talented."

Eat, pray, indulge

Eat Pray Love
Genre: Drama
Director: Ryan Murphy
Stars: Julia Roberts
●●

There's a lot wrong with the film adaptation of best-seller Eat Pray Love.

It's a completely self-indulgent exploration of upper-middle-class dissatisfaction, it condescends to native cultures and eastern spirituality and it never adequately identifies just what problems protagonist Liz Gilbert (Julia Roberts) is struggling with. But none of that is the fault of Roberts or director and co-writer Ryan Murphy.

The movie is well-shot, with sumptuous visuals and exciting camera work, and Roberts does her best to make Gilbert likeable or at least relateable. No, the real problems are with the source material.

The story goes that Gilbert walks away from her flighty husband (Billy Crudup) because of an undefined sense of lack, shacks up with an actor (James Franco) and then ditches him, hijacking his obnoxious affinity for an Indian guru and taking off on a year-long journey of self-discovery and indulgence. Along the way, she learns it's OK to enjoy eating in Rome, smiles and nods at a young woman forced into an arranged marriage in India and tries to resist the charms of an older Brazilian man (Javier Bardem) in Bali while basically using the locals as fashionable accessories.

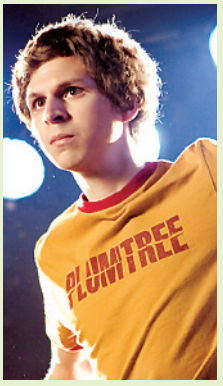
About the only thing Murphy can be blamed for is the running time. The movie clocks in at a leisurely 140 minutes, and there's really no excuse for that. In each of the three locations, there are points where the story lags. It's basically almost two and a half hours of "but I've never been to me." ● NED EHRBAR

The Disappearance of Alice Creed
Genre: Thriller
Director: J. Blakeson
Stars: Gemma Arterton
●●●●

An almost unbearably tense film about a young woman's kidnapping by two mysterious men, featuring only three actors and taking place almost entirely in single location. First time writer/director J. Blakeson crafts his story with a firm grasp of suspense and careful characterization. Each actor is given a strong role to chew on and delivers a remarkable performance (particularly Gemma Arterton). This surprising British thriller instantly qualifies as one of the best films of 2010 and should not be allowed to slip through theatres unnoticed. ● PHIL BROWN

Soul Kitchen
Genre: Comedy
Director: Faith Akin
Stars: Adam Bousdoukos
●●●½

Just as run-down Greek/German restaurant owner Zinos (Adam Bousdoukos) becomes disillusioned by taxes, the departure of his girlfriend and the reappearance of his convict brother, he reluctantly reinvents himself through entrepreneurism in the comedy-drama Soul Kitchen. Surprised by an inspection, Zinos is given mere days to revive the dive's standards by taking on a colourful, hard-boiled chef. While acclaimed filmmaker Fatih Akin's frantic pace and oddball mix of characters keep the energy flowing, Soul Kitchen often flips tone dramatically. ● STEVE GOW



Scott Pilgrim vs. The World
Genre: Action/Romance
Director: Edgar Wright
Stars: Michael Cera
●●●½

Scott Pilgrim Vs The World is best described as a hyperkinetic loveletter to eight-bit gaming, indie rock, young love, kung fu movies, Toronto and…ok, maybe it's hard to describe.

Based on the graphic novel by Bryan Lee O'Malley, the film is a pop culture-soaked romantic comedy about a boy who falls for a girl and must defeat her seven evil exes through increasingly hilarious and ludicrous fight sequences to win her heart. Director Edgar Wright (Hot Fuzz) was assigned to bring the comic to the big screen and anyone whose seen his previous movies knows that he has an ADD sense of pacing and visual storytelling that makes him perfect for the material.

For the most part this is style over substance entertainment. Fortunately, that style is exquisitely executed, so it doesn't really matter. ● PHIL BROWN

The Expendables
Genre: Action
Director: Sylvester Stallone
Stars: Sylvester Stallone, Jet Li, Jason Statham
●●½

More kitschy than captivating, The Expendables is Sly Stallone's latest foray into mining his glory years for success in contemporary Hollywood. And why not? After all, his last two outings – Rocky Balboa and Rambo – have seen the sexagenarian accumulating his biggest numbers at the box office in years. This time around, he avoids reviving a dead franchise (what was left anyhow? Stop! Or My Mom Will Shoot 2?). Instead, Stallone fuses together the likes of seasoned '80s action stars like Dolph Lundgren and Bruce Willis with today's top draws (including Jet Li and Jason Statham) to form a band of mercenaries hired to bring down a South American dictatorship. For audiences who have kept a special place in their heart for old style shoot 'em ups and the likes of Lundgren, The Expendables is a guilty delight. ● STEVE GOW

Mesrine: Killer Instinct
Genre: Action
Director: Jean-Francois Richet
Stars: Vincent Cassel
●●●●

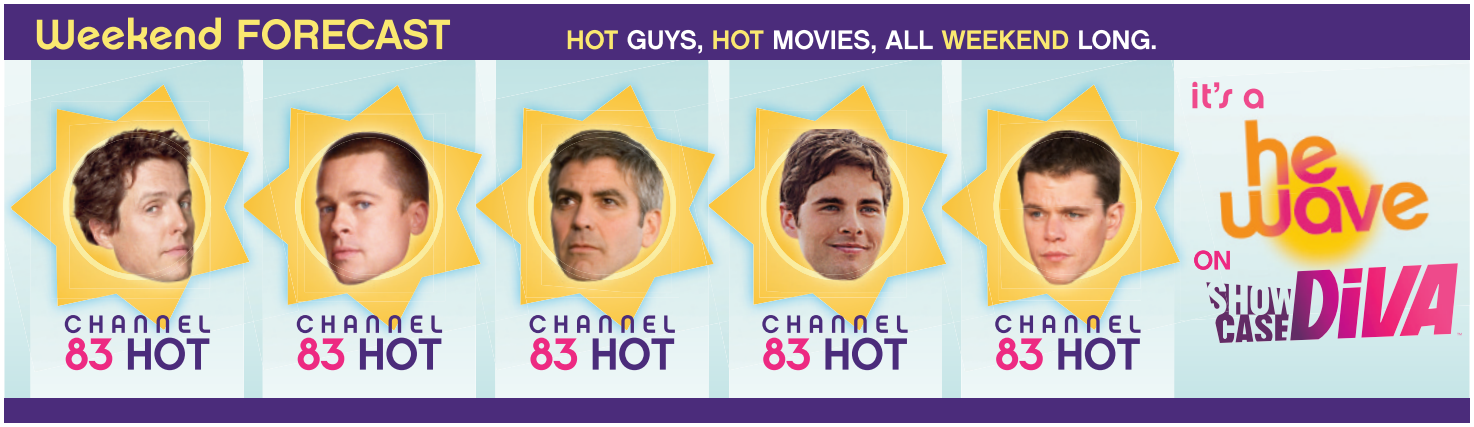
Vincent Cassel (La Haine, Irreversible, and Le Sheitan) is a superstar in France whose status sadly never crossed the pond. Mesrine is a huge two-part crime epic made to capitalize on his fame and acting ability that delivers more thrills, kills, bloody spills, and disturbing drama than a dozen Hollywood crime movies. This first chapter chronicles real life criminal Jacques Mesrine's rise through the French underworld in the 1960s before having to flee the country and spend some time in a vicious French-Canadian prison. ● PHIL BROWN

Joan Rivers: A Piece of Work
Genre: Documentary
Directors: Ricki Stern, Anne Sundberg
●●●½

The title suggests what we suspect, that as funny as Joan Rivers is, she harbours a dark side that will claw its way to success, grinding to powder anything in her path. True in a way. According to this excellent documentary by Ricki Stern and Anne Sundberg, Rivers is her own worst competitor and abhors an empty date book. Rivers is shown as sad, angry, frustrated and fearful and chronically disappointed in herself; there is never enough money, respect, or work. ● ANNE BRODIE

Animal Kingdom
Genre: Drama
Director: David Michod
Stars: Jackie Weaver
●●●

Australian director David Michod's Animal Kingdom works its titular metaphor for all its worth: the criminal clan at its centre is depicted as a feral, incestuous tangle of alpha males, lorded over by a crafty matriarch (Jacki Weaver). The question is whether our teenaged protagonist (James Frecheville) will assume his place in the pack or transcend the bad life altogether; that the movie has its mind made up well before the final scene doesn't detract from the effectiveness of the performances or the sudden, horrifying bursts of violence. ● ADAM NAYMAN



Flesh-eating fish thrive on fear of water

Piranha 3D stars mutated form of killer fish ◗ Prehistoric creatures bigger, nastier and uglier ◗ Hollywood hopes to recreate Jaws hysteria

SUBMITTED PHOTO

▶ Jerry O' Connell stars in Piranha 3D, in theatres next week.

STEVE GOW
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

With a movie like Piranha 3D, it's pretty safe to assume you know what you're going to get.

In fact, if there were any doubt, director Alexandre Aja recently described the film as a mix between Gremlins, Weird Science and Dead Alive.

"It is funny," exclaimed star Jessica Szohr (TV's Gossip Girl) from Manhattan. "I think you' ll laugh, you'll be very scared and entertained — it's a scary, funny, summer popcorn movie."

Even the studio's marketing department has picked up on Piranha 3D's potential as a fun summer movie. The film's poster fittingly pays homage to Steven Spielberg's classic Jaws but while that 1975 thriller featured a menacing shark, Piranha 3D stars a mutated form of nasty omnivorous freshwater fish.

"It was ridiculously warm ... so we were basically in and out of the lake in between different scenes ... that's what was awesome about working on a lake because that' s the only way we were staying cool."
JESSICA SZOHR ON FILMING IN LAKE HAVASU, ARIZ.

"(The filmmakers) based it off a prehistoric piranha so it's not like your modern-day piranha and they kind of decided to make it look like what they thought a prehistoric one would look like," said Szohr. Indeed, the species in the thriller is definitely bigger, uglier and much nastier — especially in 3-D. "It'll be fun (to see) with the piranhas popping out at you and all the craziness that goes on."

Presumably, Hollywood will be banking on flesh-eating fish to have the same effect Jaws had on audiences more than 30 years ago — fear of the water. Even more than three-dimensional seafood, that natural phobia may be the true potency of Piranha 3D.

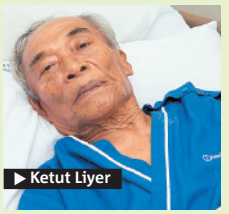
"We don' t know what's going on (underwater). You can't see and you can only go under for so long if you want to check out what's going on. It's just a whole mystery of what is there," said Szohr with a dramatic pause. "… Or what's not."

Big Fish

Other Famous Frightening Fish:

- Creature from the Black Lagoon — In 1954, audiences were terrorized by the menacing (but misunderstood) Amazon Gill Monster ... in 3-D no less!
- Jaws – Spielberg's 1975 magnum opus about a shark terrorizing Amity Island set the bar for the rest to follow.
- Piranha — Directed by Joe Dante (Gremlins), the 1978 nail-biter was the loose basis for Piranha 3D.
- The Host – Shattering box office records in South Korea, this 2006 thriller starred a giant monster with tentacles stalking from the Han River.

Eat Pray Love fortuneteller hospitalized



▶ Ketut Liyer

The Balinese fortuneteller featured in Elizabeth Gilbert's best-selling memoir Eat Pray Love has been hospitalized because of a heart ailment — just days before a movie adaptation starring Julia Roberts hits U.S. theatres, his doctor said Thursday.

Ketut Liyer has become a celebrity in his village of Ubud since the book came out in 2006.

Tourists and locals have flocked to his house on Indonesia' s resort island of Bali so he could read their palms. His granddaughter, Wayan Puspita Sari, said the 96-year-old has been asked to appear in several commercials and advertisements.

"He is exhausted by all of this," she said. "It may have affected his health."

Liyer, who also has a prostate problem, was admitted to the Surya Husada hospital over the weekend and underwent prostate surgery on Monday, said his doctor, Wayan Gede Wirawan. Though he has made a strong recovery and says he wants to return home, the fortuneteller is being asked to stay at least one week. Hollywood star Roberts plays Gilbert in Eat Pray Love, a story about a frustrated divorcee who takes a yearlong trip to Italy, India and Bali in search of inner peace. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Love horror, genre or just the plain weird? Get all your thrills and chills at the Toronto After Dark film festival, which kicks off today

PHIL BROWN
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

In a city filled with film festivals, there's only one place to see a movie about a killer tire (Rubber) or three humans being surgically connected through their digestive tracts (Human Centipede).

Yep, it's time for Toronto After Dark, the only local film fest entirely dedicated to horror, genre, or just plain weird and disturbing movies. It's a niche that festival founder/director Adam Lopez knew needed attention.

"When I came to Toronto, I noticed there wasn't a festival dedicated to my kind of movie," Lopez told Metro. "You know, horror, sci-fi, action, and cult movies. Really exciting, really bloody, and fun films."

For Lopez, the programming goal is to "go back to feeling like a teenager watching exciting genre films."

It's precisely this attitude that has caused the festival to draw larger crowds every year since opening in 2005. That's the experience the audience is looking for and what the participating filmmakers like Joshua Grannell strive to create.

"I was a horror obsessed kid growing up in Maryland who worshipped Fangoria, Freddy Krueger, and anything macabre or spooky," Grannell told Metro.

The filmmaker is screening his debut feature All About Evil at this year's festival, following years of work as a popular film programmer in San Francisco.

"The inspiration for my movie came from working in neighbourhood theatres as a projectionist, programming repertory cinemas, and having loads of anxiety over the influx of multiplexes putting single screen cinemas out of business," said Grannell.

▶ All About Evil

His movie is about a repressed theatre owner who gets into filmmaking by killing annoying patrons and selling tickets to footage of the murders to horror fans.

"If someone is texting during a movie, talking loudly, or worse chewing loudly, I want to murder them," joked the director. "I'm definitely one of those filmmakers who makes movies about loving movies."

This deep love of genre movies defines the filmmakers, audiences, and organizers of Toronto After Dark.

"We don't really make any money from this," admitted Adam Lopez. "It's a labour of love and we'll keep doing it as long as the fans keep coming."

▶ The Last Exorcism

5 films to see at TADF

Human Centipede
One of the most unsettling viewing experiences you'll ever have, guaranteed to leave a bad taste in your mouth.

Black Death
A gripping and surprisingly intelligent combination of medieval religious rhetoric, plague hysteria, and gory gothic horror.

Heartless
The brilliant and underrated Philip Ridley's latest film is a thoughtful exploration of a disturbed mind with a demonic twist.

All About Evil
A cheeky dark comedy about a horror fan turning murder into a filmmaking career.

The Last Exorcism
It's certainly not The Exorcist, but this is a clever and chilling mockumentary twist on possession horror.

YOU SHOULD CALL IT THE BIG SMOKESCREEN

The new film Scott Pilgrim vs. The World begins with a title card that reads "Not so long ago in the mysterious land of Toronto, Canada."

It establishes that the movie is set in Toronto, but not the Toronto we usually see in films. That Toronto often subs for New York or Chicago.

The Toronto of Scott Pilgrim comes complete with Casa Loma, Lee's Palace and other T-Dot landmarks. It's probably the most expensive movie to feature Toronto as itself, but it's not the only one. Here's a look back at Toronto on-screen:

Lawyerin' and doctorin' jobs!

For many people, the first on-screen glimpse of Toronto onscreen came from the backseat of a 1960 Chevrolet Impala. Goin' Down the Road, the story of Pete (Doug McGrath) and his pal Joey (Paul Bradley), two Maritimers who set out in a Chevy to find a better life in Toronto, (SCTV joked they were looking for "lawyerin' and doctorin' jobs") is a city time capsule circa 1970.

Look for great shots of Yonge Street attractions including the classic Sam the Record Man spinning double disc neon sign. The signs are gone now, making their last appearance in the 2008 film The Incredible Hulk.

Long live the new flesh!

Although David Cronenberg has made more than a dozen films in T.O. and says, "I love shooting in Toronto," film critic Geoff Pevere says, "Toronto had never seemed weirder," than in the director's epic Videodrome.

The story of a sleazy UHF television station programmer who becomes spellbound by the hallucinatory power of porn movies, is set in Toronto and not only used many of the city's locations, but its unique references as well. Civic TV allegedly refers to CityTV, which, in its early days used to air soft-core pornography late at night.

▶ The Canadian classic Goin' Down The Road is a Toronto time capsule circa 1970.

Yonge and Dundas and Beyond

For a look at the down-and-dirty Yonge Street Strip, once the body rub capital of Canada, check out Ron Mann's 1974 Super-8 documentary The Strip. On the other end of the scale is Atom Egoyan's Chloe, the story of a Toronto escort and the woman who hires her to test her husband's fidelity. Toronto has never looked lovelier than this. "At the level of metaphor, it's interesting because Toronto is a prostitute. As a city, very often it pretends to be New York or Chicago or San Francisco," Egoyan said. "So it's interesting, since this is a film about that."

Welcome to Romero's new nightmare

Legendary horror director returns with another "Dead" film Survival of The Dead was shot in Ancaster

CHRIS ALEXANDER
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

George A. Romero is proudly Canadian. Sort of.

The iconic master of horror was born in New York, moved to Pittsburgh to launch a film career in the 1960's (where he wrote and directed his first film, 1968's landmark Night of The Living Dead) and stayed there, pumping out horror films and thrillers, virtually inventing the zombie sub-genre (Dawn of The Dead is one of the most influential films of all time) and become one of America's most recognized purveyors of independent filmmaking.

But when Romero made 2005's big budget Land of The Dead in Toronto, he fell in love with the place, and moved here shortly afterwards.

Now an honorary Canadian, the filmmaker has been steadily pumping out low budget, partially homegrown financed pictures ever since including 2007's Diary of The Dead and now, opening next week for a limited run after a phenomenal festival, U.S. theatrical and VOD run, comes his latest "Dead" film, Survival of The Dead.

"I love Toronto," Romero told Metro.

"I have a whole new set of friends here and colleagues, a whole new life. There are amazing people in this city and some fantastic talent."

Survival — shot primarily just outside of the city in Ancaster, Ont. — is a kind of quasi-western epic with two rural families battling it out for the fate of the increasing ghoul population. The film sees the director doing what he does best: sculpting a hideously gory cannibalistic zombie romp laced with a serious minded – yet lively — socio-political subtext.

▶ George Romero's latest film Survival of The Dead.

"With this one, I was speaking about tribalism," he notes. "The zombies are the central problem but these people are too busy fighting with each other to deal with the crisis at hand. There's also plenty of arch humour in this one too."

Bar attack injury forces Sum 41 to cancel Warped dates

Band announces withdrawal of U.S. dates on website ‘Random, unprovoked incident’ aggravated singer’s 2007 slipped disc injury

Sum 41 has withdrawn from five remaining Warped Tour dates due to an injury singer Deryck Whibley sustained after being attacked in a bar in Japan.

The Ajax, Ont., pop-punkers announced on their website they’ll be unable to play five August dates in California, Idaho, Washington and Oregon.

Whibley was allegedly attacked by three assailants last week in what the band is calling a “random, unprovoked incident.”

The 30-year-old Whibley was hospitalized and tests revealed he had aggravated a slipped disc injury he sustained in 2007, the band said.

Sum 41 took the stage anyway for the Summer Sonic festival in Osaka, Japan after the attack.

But the band said it was forced to cancel the remaining Warped dates because Whibley’s condition has not improved.

“Knowing that they are unable to deliver their signature high-energy show, Sum 41 made the tough decision that a break is needed while Deryck begins rehabilitation for the slipped disc,” the band posted on its website.

The band already cancelled Warped Tour dates earlier this month when Whibley was stricken with a case of bronchitis.

“Being a part of the Warped Tour this summer meant a lot to us,” drummer Steve Jocz posted on the band’s site.

“We haven’t toured in two years and the bands, the crowds and the entire Warped Tour crew have been amazing to us. We were excited to be back in front of our fans and are very disappointed that we have to pull off the tour.”

The band also posted Whibley was expected to make a full recovery. They also said they planned to follow through on the European tour set to begin Aug. 31 in Switzerland.

THE HEROIN BOOK TOUR, PART 1

Sound Check

ALAN CROSS
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

This summer has turned into the summer of the former junkie confessional autobiography.

First up was Dave Mustaine, a founding member of Metallica and since 1983, the leader of Megadeth. His book, Mustaine: A Heavy Metal Memoir (HarperCollins), contains so many tales of alcohol and drug abuse that you're almost guaranteed to wake up the next morning with a hangover and a bad case of opiate withdrawal.

Mustaine knows rehab because he's been through it 17 times. "You go in there, get sobered up but there was no really giving you the tools to cope with stuff. It's like sobering up a drunken horse thief. As soon as he sobers up, what have you got? A horse thief." Dave's spiral to near-death was rooted largely in unresolved emotional pain that went back decades.

MARK METCALFE/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Dave Mustaine of Megadeth performs on stage last year in Sydney, Australia.

The most frightening rehab episode involved falling asleep in an awkward position in a chair. When he woke up, his left arm was asleep and wouldn't wake up. Doctors said he'd never play guitar again.

"There's a little nerve on the inside of my bicep on my left arm. It's about 4 millimetres around and it got crunched like when you chew on a drinking straw. It needed to grow back and it grows at a millimeter per month. Then there was the physical therapy that followed that: 13 months of picking up needles with some tweezers and sticking them into a pegboard and turning a doorknob. It was 17 months before I could pick up a guitar again.

"When you're a guitar player and you have that taken away from you, it's devastating. It was THIS HAND," he says gesturing with what he calls "the moneymaker."

This incident — and Mustaine's ability to recover — convinced him that perhaps a higher power was showing him the error of his ways and that he could reform his ways. That's when the wannabe Satanist and part-time practitioner of black magic embraced Christianity.

"If anyone needed to have a life-changing event take place, it was me. I didn't realize that God was all I needed until He was all I had."

Mustaine is a fascinating look into the darker sides of being a famous metal musician. Recommended.

Next week: Steven Adler, the guy who was thrown out of Guns 'N Roses for taking too many drugs.

Magazine shoots

Fashion
The magazine world is abuzz with accolades and criticisms over two new attention-grabbing photo shoots. The first, a stirring spread in the August issue of Vogue Italia inspired by the Gulf oil spill, shows a lifeless-looking model in various monochrome images covered in oil, spitting up water and choking. Less controversial but equally hyped is actress Jennifer Aniston's Barbra Streisand tribute in the September issue of Harper's Bazaar. Aniston recreates some of the living legend's famous poses — but sans nose bump.

Quitting stories

People
A week ago Steven Slater was an anonymous flight attendant for JetBlue. After his dramatic exit from his job on Monday he has become a folk hero to some and a rude bully to others. Whether you love him or hate him, Slater's star has soared and prompted many discussions about the best and worst ways to quit a job.

Triple Bill

Film
No, there isn't an actual triple feature playing at a theatre near you. But this week's big releases — Scott Pilgrim vs. The World (ultimate indie teen flick), The Expendables (ultimate action flick) and Eat Pray Love (ultimate chick flick) — make one delicious combo for film lovers.

Best-selling

Video Game
Despite being released back on July 27, Starcraft 2 is still far and away the biggest story in the video game universe this week. The follow-up to the uber popular Starcraft, which was released back in 1998, claims to be the fastest-selling strategy game of all time.

▶ Beautiful Women Project exhibit at The Ex.

Let's go to...

Just as we do for events like the Calgary Stampede, Canadians from all over the country will flock to Toronto for the venerable Canadian National Exhibition (CNE), taking place Aug. 20 through Sept. 6. Canada's biggest fair is a great way to put a glowing cap on a summer vacation. New this year will be the Beautiful Women Project exhibit, featuring 120 life-size sculptures of women's busts by artist Cheryl-Ann Webster. Using subjects from age 19 through 91, the project was designed to represent each woman's story, courage and natural beauty. METRO NEWS SERVICE

Parenting experts back Team Aniston

The Switch actress gets support for comments about single motherhood, claiming O'Reilly is "out of touch"

Bill O'Reilly may still be squawking about how Jennifer Aniston is "destructive to society," because her new movie, The Switch, sends the message to kids that a woman doesn't need a man to have a baby. But parenting experts weighing in on the media squabble are firmly Team Aniston, saying the host of FOX News' The O'Reilly Factor is out of touch with modern society.

"It's unrealistic and not in touch with how family is changing," social psychologist Susan Newman, author of Parenting an Only Child, tells gossip website PopEater.

"The traditional family that we have always known as mom, dad and two kids is no longer the traditional family."

The Conservative blowhard flipped out over comments made by the 41-year-old actress while promoting her film, where she plays a woman who decides to conceive by using a sperm donor and artificial insemination.

Said Aniston: "Women are realizing more and more that you don't have to settle, they don't have to fiddle with a man to have that child. They are realizing if it's that time in their life and they want this part they can do it with or without that." METRO WORLD NEWS

"I don't know how long they have been together and I have not met him yet, but I'm looking forward to it," her dad, Alan Walsh, says. "We just found out about her pregnancy a couple of days ago. One burger, four cuts of meat

Solving the problem of dry burgers ▶ A hands-off approach helps keep the meat fluffy

LARRY CROWE/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ The Wayfare Tavern Burger includes four different cuts of meat in the patty.

Ingredients :
- 250 g (1/2 lb) ground prime rib
- 500 g (1 lb) ground brisket
- 500 g (1 lb) ground skirt steak
- 250 g (1/2 lb) ground filet
- 8 hamburger buns
- Kosher salt and pepper
- 1 large red onion, sliced into 5-mm (1/4-inch) rings
- 250 ml (1 cup) lemon aioli
- 250 g (1/2 lb) brie, cut into thin slices

8 portions
Start to Finish: 20 min.

When Tyler Florence was creating hamburgers for his new restaurant, his goal was simple — a burger that stays moist no matter how well-done it is cooked.

The solution was all a matter of numbers — one month of experimenting with the percentage of fat and the number of cuts of meat.

"Most people do an 80-20 lean-to-fat ratio," Florence, whose Wayfare Tavern opened recently in San Francisco, said in a telephone interview.

"We go 75-to-25 ratio, so it's a little fattier. So even if you like it well done, it's still nice and moist."

For the cuts of meat, Florence settled on four of them — prime rib, brisket, skirt steak and filet. And after they are ground (at another facility), it's mostly a hands-off procedure.

"When it comes in, no one is really allowed to touch it except to take it out of the package and weigh it out," said Florence, host of Food Network's The Great Food Truck Race. "It gets touched once before it goes on the grill. It loses that fluffiness once you work it too much. It starts to become chewy really quickly."

Florence was equally exacting when it came to toppings.

"You can't just put stuff on top of the burger for the sake of it," he said. "To me, it's got to be very purposeful stuff. You have to really think it through so it's a complimentary flavour and not a distraction from the burger."

For the AP's 20 Burgers of Summer series, Florence opted for an intensely savoury and creamy combination of oven-roasted red onions, lemon aioli and brie.

Preparation:

1. In a large bowl, mix prime rib, brisket, skirt steak and filet together until well blended, but not overworked.
2. Divide meat into 8 portions and shape into patties. Season with salt and pepper.
3. Heat oven to 200 C (400 F). Line a baking sheet with parchment paper.
4. Arrange onion slices in a single layer on prepared pan. Roast onion slices for 10 to 12 minutes or until tender. Set aside.
5. Heat grill on high. Grill burgers to desired doneness, about 4 minutes on each side for medium-rare.
6. Top bottom half of each roll with a burger, some of the red onions, aioli and brie.

▶ Its proximity to the city centre makes La Malagueta the top beach in Malaga, Spain.

Magical Malaga

It lies deep in the heart of the Costa del Sol, but is more Moorish than meets the eye Malaga is a high-octane mix of cultures and ideals and fabulous weather It is very Spanish, yet its heart is very much its own...

Picasso's hometown is more than the gateway to the glittering Costa del Sol. The Spanish port city is a historical and cultural gem and far more genuine than the nearby party town of Marbella.

FINE FOOD

Bodegas are plentiful around Malaga, but the Antigua Casa de Guardia has one of the best muscatel wines around. For delicate cakes and coffee, posh Malagueños go to Lépanto, but if what you're after is the ultimate guilty pleasure, go for thick hot chocolate and churros (fried doughnuts) at Casa Aranda.

The Michelin-starred Café Paris is the place to enjoy a long and lazy lunch.

PICASSO

You could easily dedicate an entire trip to Malaga on Picasso. Showcased in the somewhat austere museum (2.museopicassomalaga.org) are some 200 sculptures and paintings by the late artist. His home, 'Casa Natal' is on the trendy Plaza de la Merced and now serves as a 'shrine.'

BEACHES

Its proximity to the city centre makes La Malagueta the top beach. The fine sand may not be so authentic (it's imported from the Sahara Desert), but the atmosphere is. Bustling beach cafes, known as 'Chiringuitos' abound. For a more bohemian beach setting, head over to Baños de Carmen, a small and secluded bay or Playa de Palo, a fisherman's neighbourhood.

OLD TOWN

Use the cathedral as your compass and discover the old town centre. Construction work on the cathedral (referred to as 'La Manquita' the one armed because its southern tower was never completed) lasted two centuries. The result is a swagger of Renaissance/Gothic interiors and a Baroque style exterior.

Shop for local cheese, ham and strawberries at the Mercado de Atarazanas (mercadosmalaga.com), where the Arabic influence is palpable.

MOORISH MODE

Islamic influences are embedded in Malaga's everyday life. Perched atop a jagged cliff is the Alcazaba, a Muslim fortress dating back to the 11th century. Walk through the shady patios and galleries as you take in the powerful scents of jasmine and orange blossom.

Back in town, book a session at the hammam baths, 'Baños Arabes' and choose from a myriad of treatments including chocolate oil massage (elhammam.com).

EXOTIC ESCAPE

Some 5 km outside of the city centre is the exotic botanical gardens of La Concepción (laconcepcion.ayto-malaga.es). Created in the mid-19th century by a wealthy Marquis and his wife whilst on honeymoon, they are the perfect romantic getaway.

Voluntourism — combining your holiday with volunteer work — is on the rise. Giving your time overseas can make a real difference both to your own life and the people you donate your work to, especially if you've got specialist skills.

There are at least 146 voluntourism organizations worldwide and there are opportunities on all continents. The top five countries are China, India, U.S.A., Indonesia and Brazil, according to the study voluntourism by Georgian College, in Barrie, Ont.

However, voluntourism is not without its critics and reports of overpriced and badly organized programs for students. It really pays to do your research, check blogs and forums and stick to reputable organizations like the International Ecotourism Society (TIES).

Hot destinations for voluntourists this year include the areas affected by BP's oil spill.

"There are quite a few volunteer opportunities that are available for people that are interested in just not going there which helps the local economy but being part of volunteer opportunities," says Ayako Ezaki, Director of Communications at TIES.

Victory from the jaws of a sweep

Jays now have positives to build on when facing Sox again next week

5	6
RED SOX	BLUE JAYS

The plane ride to California, had they just been swept by the Boston Red Sox, would have been dreadful.

Five hours is a long time to stew over things gone wrong, as so much has all year for the Toronto Blue Jays against their AL East rivals.

That's why Thursday afternoon's stirring ninth-inning comeback from a 5-2 deficit in a 6-5 victory was particularly uplifting. It's games like this one, especially once closer Jonathan Papelbon had come in, that usually haven't ended in their favour.

"We couldn't get on the plane with a loss," said Fred Lewis, whose sacrifice fly in the bottom of the ninth brought home Aaron Hill with the winning run. "We haven't done well against these guys. In the big picture we have to beat these guys in order to get back up to the top.

"Today was a great start."

For eight and half innings it didn't look that way, as a dominant John Lackey seemed headed for his first complete game of the season. Instead, Jose Bautista worked a tremendous at-bat to open the ninth and eventually smashed his 36th homer of the season over the wall in left to ignite the rally.

That was it for Lackey and in came Papelbon, who had converted all 24 of his career save chances versus the Blue Jay but described himself as "groggy" this time. He was immediately tagged by Vernon Wells, who drove his first pitch into the right-field corner for a double and Adam Lind brought him home on the next one with a smash up the box.

Pinch-runner Dewayne Wise then stole second and advanced to third when Hill singled off Papelbon's left foot, leaving the Red Sox reeling in a span of seven pitches.

Papelbon (4-5) recovered to strike out Travis Snider before Edwin Encarnacion's double down the left-field line tied things up. After pinch-hitter Lyle Overbay was walked intentionally, Lewis hit a fly ball to centre off Daniel Bard that was just deep enough to score Hill.

In what felt like a snap of the fingers, the game was turned on its head.

Overbay not convinced his Jay days are ending

Up until a couple of weeks ago Lyle Overbay was convinced that one way or another, his days with the Toronto Blue Jays would soon be over.

Now, even after a report surfaced Thursday morning saying he had cleared waivers and was eligible to be traded this month, the first baseman isn't as sure.

"I honestly thought I would be done after this year," Overbay said.

$2M Overbay's due about $2 million for the rest of the season and would be a great addition for a team looking for a strong defensive first baseman with pop.

"Then all of a sudden, since the (Brett) Wallace trade, it's kind of opened up an opportunity to come back here."

Bartoli beats Wozniacki

TENNIS. Sixteenth-seeded Marion Bartoli won eight straight games on her way to beating second-seeded Caroline Wozniacki 6-4, 6-1 in the third round of the Cincinnati Women's Open on Thursday.

Twelfth-seeded Yanina Wickmayer also reached the quarter-finals with a 2-6, 6-2, 7-6 (4) win over eighth-seeded Li Na, while 11th-seeded Flavia Pennetta knocked out sixth-seeded Vera Zvonareva 6-4, 6-3.

End of the line for Chipper?

MLB. Chipper Jones' agent says he'll need surgery on his injured left knee and is likely done for the season.

The Atlanta Braves third baseman had already said he would consider retirement at the end of the year, and he may have played his last game after tearing the anterior cruciate ligament Tuesday while fielding a ground ball at Houston.

Mets suspend Rodriguez

Tiger shows signs of return to form

Woods briefly reaches top of leaderboard at PGA Championship ◗ Errant shots leave him one under par

Tiger Woods broke par in the PGA Championship, cause for celebration Thursday.

It wasn't as good as Bubba Watson and Francesco Molinari of Italy, who handled the breeze and bunkers at Whistling Straits and wound up atop the leaderboard at 4-under 68 among those who finished the first round.

Then again, it wasn't nearly as bad as what some were expecting.

Even after the fog lifted along the shores of Lake Michigan, no one was sure what they would see from Woods. The answer came early, with three birdies on his opening holes to — get this — put his name atop the leaderboard.

But only briefly.

STUART FRANKLIN/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Tiger Woods watches his tee shot on the 14th hole.

There were enough errant shots, including one that went so far left it found a marsh he didn't know was there, that Woods had to make an 8-foot birdie putt on the final hole for a 1-under 71.

"I've played too good not to shoot under par," Woods said. "It would've been very disappointing and frustrating to end up at even par as well as I played today. To make that putt — to shoot under par — just feels like that's what I should have shot the way I played today. And that's a good feeling."

Since when is shooting 71 a good feeling for a guy with 14 majors?

When he's coming off the worst tournament of his career, an 18-over 298 at Firestone to beat only one player in the field, raising questions that ranged from whether this would be his last PGA Tour event of the year in America to whether he belonged in the Ryder Cup.

Federer wins an old-school showdown

- Third seed prevails in creative contest with Llodra
- Djokovic and Nadal also advance to next round

Michael Llodra tried every trick in the book in his third-round match with Roger Federer at the Rogers Cup.

Fancy drop shots. A between-the-legs volley. He even tried an underhand serve.

Federer was ready for almost all of it on the sun-baked hardcourt at the Rexall Centre, and advanced to the quarter-finals with a 7-6 (2), 6-3 victory on Thursday. Top-seeded Rafael Nadal of Spain, second-seeded Novak Djokovic of Serbia and fourth-seeded Andy Murray of Britain also posted victories to move on to the final eight.

The Federer-Llodra match was a return to old-school tennis, with both players showing creativity and aggressiveness instead of the more common baseline power game used by many at the sport's top level.

The crowd ate it up and the players enjoyed it too. Llodra even picked up a souvenir after shaking hands with the two-time champion, asking Federer for his pink tennis shirt.

The top two seeds posted straight-set victories as Djokovic downed Victor Hanescu of Romania 6-3, 6-4 while Nadal beat South African qualifier Kevin Anderson 6-2, 7-6 (6).

STADIUM CONTROVERSY

Hamilton digs in on build site

Hamilton city council has reaffirmed the downtown West Harbour site as the location for a new stadium, but two councillors have pulled their support for the project.

Thursday's ratification vote was 10-6 in favour of the West Harbour location over the East Mountain. Tuesday's count at the committee level was 12-3.

Councillors Terry Whitehead and Tom Jackson changed their votes Thursday and Brad Clark, who didn't attend Tuesday's session, also voted no.

The stadium is slated to play host to the Pan American Games in August 2015 and was to become the new home of the CFL's Hamilton Tiger-Cats. But Ticats owner Bob Young wanted the new building at the East Mountain site and pulled his support for the project earlier this week.

Warner to call indoor title game

Kurt Warner is returning to his Arena Football League roots.

The recently retired NFL quarterback will call the Arena Bowl for the NFL Network on Aug. 20.

Before he was a two-time NFL MVP, Warner was an AFL star. He led Iowa to Arena Bowl appearances in 1996 and 1997 — then later played in three Super Bowls.

Coach's energy no act

Argos' receivers coach 'stands out' in more ways than one He's a newcomer to coaching — and has appeared in two Hollywood movies

Ask Jeremaine Copeland about his position coach and the Toronto Argonauts slotback instantly starts laughing.

"He definitely stands out," Copeland said of receivers coach Cos DeMatteo as the Argos prepared to meet the Montreal Alouettes on Saturday. "He's just a live wire.

"He's fired up as soon as we come into the locker room at 7 in the morning, like he's had seven cappuccinos or something."

DeMatteo obviously doesn't lose any of that energy by the time the Argos hit the practice field four hours later. He regularly runs alongside his receivers, barking a mixture of instructions and positive reinforcement designed to get a corps of young receivers maturing before their time.

While that alone sets DeMatteo apart from most of his colleagues, it's his resumé that really lets you know he's a bit different. For one, it's pretty thin.

He has two years of coaching experience, split between the Tennessee Valley Vipers of Arena Football 2 and a Chattanooga prep school. His playing career consisted of five years as a receiver in arena football and another in NFL Europe.

For another, he's the only guy on staff to appear in two Hollywood movies — with a speaking part in one.

"Anytime you get to do something new and unusual, it's a good thing."
COS DEMATTEO, ARGOS RECEIVERS COACH

You might remember him as Dean German from the hit 2006 movie Invincible, a snarling linebacker from Nebraska who tells star Mark Wahlberg, "You ain't going nowhere."

Talk about casting against type. DeMatteo's thick Tennessee accent and constant sunny nature lend credence to his acting ability.

He was first invited to be an extra in the remake of The Longest Yard, mainly because the filming schedule meant only Arena League players were available.

That led to an audition for Invincible, the true story of a teacher and part-time bartender who cracked the Philadelphia Eagles lineup in 1976.

DeMatteo had to add 20 pounds, grow a beard and let his hair grow out to look the part. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Premiership powers stick to their guns

There will be a familiar look to title favourites Chelsea and Manchester United when the Premier League season begins this weekend.

After ending Man United's three-year grip on the trophy in May, Chelsea has made one addition to an aging team, unloading several players ahead of Saturday's opener against West Bromwich Albion.

United's effort to get stronger has only amounted to signing a trio of youngsters, who may not start on Monday against Newcastle (TSN, 3 p.m. ET).

Such lack of investment could backfire if Manchester City's big spending — almost $500 million US in two years — finally turns the underachievers into a force.

While Man City's outlay this off-season has reached $138 million with more than two weeks left before the transfer window closes, billionaire Chelsea owner Roman Abramovich has only spent $8 million signing Yossi Benayoun from Liverpool.

The Israel captain has replaced 28-year-old midfielder Joe Cole.

Michael Ballack, Juliano Belletti and Ricardo Carvalho, all in their 30s, also have left. But manager Carlo Ancelotti still has a far-from-youthful squad, relying heavily on captain John Terry, Frank Lampard, Didier Drogba, Nicolas Anelka and Peter Cech.

Those players bring experience, not tired legs, to the team, Ancelotti says.

"The players will be better this season because they have one year more experience, like me," Ancelotti said. "I'm not older. I'm more experienced. I am a better manager now. I had more doubt last year, when I started." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WNBA boasts new fans in arenas, on TV

Attendance is up slightly in the WNBA for the fourth straight year and ratings have improved again — positive signs as the league's 14th season heads into the final stretch.

"What you're seeing is the base of interest in the WNBA continuing to grow," WNBA president Donna Orender told The Associated Press. "That was the goal we set out several years ago."

After seeing the average attendance rise to 8,039 per game a year ago, the WNBA reported an increase of one per cent through last week compared to a corresponding point last season. Also, ratings on ESPN2 were up 14 per cent with an increase in viewership of 23 per cent through the first 14 broadcasts of the season.

Last year, the WNBA regular season on ESPN finished with an average of 269,000 viewers, up eight per cent from 2008 — marking the second straight year of improvement.

"We know we have a tremendously entertaining product," Orender said. "The quality of the athletes is fantastic, the quality of the entertainment experience. We just know if we get people in front of it, they're going to love it. That's what we're starting to see happening." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

JWard, 365 days to go until we are married. Who would have thunk it 5 years ago?? Not this kid! You WERE everything that I never wanted. I didn't want to be an Army Wife and now we are having a military wedding. I guess you could say, You are everything I didn't know I wanted but now that I know...I wouldn't change a thing! I FRICKIN love you more than anything! XOXO P.S. Happy 17 months tomorrow ~RAWR~ ANNONYMOUS

Happy birthday alex! Just want you to have a birthday that is as special as you are. Love you always. YOUR NERA

To my Sugar Plum, our relationship so far has been the best eight days of my life. I'll never forget lawn-bowling, buying belts and frolicking at Byward. Love always. YOUR SWEET SWEET TREASURE

Today's horoscope

For today's crossword answers and for expanded horoscopes, go to metronews.ca

♈ Aries March 21-April 19 Steer clear of contentious issues today, especially those involving politics or religion. You may have strong views on certain subjects, but so do other people. You won't persuade them. Keep your distance.

♉ Taurus April 20-May 21 You are being far too serious about something that's really of no importance at all. Take your mind off the issue by seeking out people who make you feel good, who make you laugh.

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 You may be of the opinion that someone you work or do business with is trying to undermine your efforts, but in fact they are trying to help you. Listen and learn.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 No matter how annoying certain individuals may be you must not allow yourself to be provoked. You may be angry on the inside, but on the outside you should project a picture of calm serenity.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug.23 A sudden attraction is likely today, but you are really too different for the relationship, such as it is, to stand the test of time. Treat it as a bit of fun.

♍ Virgo Aug. 24- Sept. 22 You need to do a bit of serious thinking about a partnership or association that has been quite profitable in the past, but seems to be running out of steam. In a nutshell: It's holding you back.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 You would be wise to take things slow and easy today, because what happens over the weekend will demand your full attention and every last bit of energy you can muster.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 Something you hear while on the move today will inspire you to aim higher and try harder and before the day is over your mind will be teeming with plans for the rest of the year.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 Life has been so kind to you of late that some people, both at home and at work, are feeling a bit resentful. If they had your positive attitude maybe they would get lucky, too.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 You are right to feel pleased with what you have accomplished in recent weeks, but you know what they say about pride coming before a fall. Times may be good, but take nothing for granted.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 Stop worrying about what has gone wrong and start thinking about all the wonderful things that are going to go right today, tomorrow and every day of your life from now on.

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20 Usually you are only too eager to come to the aid of someone in need, but today you just want to be left alone. Find a quite place where you can be alone. SALLY BROMPTON
